

business process mapping

our approach

Our approach to the mapping process is made in a straightforward format and follows the following principles:

- Assess the current situation
- Review qualitative and quantitative information available
- Define risks and rewards of the current scenarios
- Outline improvement areas
- Create business support tools

our experience

Our client projects have recently included process re-engineering, process and objective alignment and risk assessment centres.

A fundamental element in each project is our ability to recognise the human elements within the business mix and the acceptance of any new processes and change.

Through recognising the values of organisations and people, we have been able to map and align them. This ensures that whatever activities and objectives are undertaken, all are achievable and their success factors recognised.

our value

- Structured business reporting
- Clear recommendations
- Objective and experience based consultancy
- Link to business objectives
- Identification of successful people and process integration

www.mundialconsulting.co.uk

